The Crime of Complicity: The Bystander in the Holocaust
Amos N. Guiora

Thursday, April 27 • 7 pm • BJC • Free & Open to the Public

If you are a bystander and witness a crime, should intervention to prevent that crime be a legal obligation? Or is moral responsibility enough? Amos N. Guiora addresses these profound questions and the bystander-victim relationship from a deeply personal and legal perspective, focusing on the Holocaust and then exploring cases in contemporary society. He shares the experiences of his parents and grandparents during the Holocaust and examines sexual assault cases at Vanderbilt and Stanford and other crimes where bystanders chose not to intervene. Guiora recommends that we must make the obligation to intervene the law, and thus non-intervention a crime.

Ezekiel's Vision - Then and Now by Rabbi Daniel Goldfarb
Conservative Yeshiva Faculty and Coordinator, Torah Sparks

The Torah and Haftarah readings for Shabbat Hol haMoed Pesach and Sukkot are among the oldest we know. The Talmud (Megilla 31a) says that the Torah reading for both these Shabbats is the same, 'See, You say unto me' (from Ex 33, where the Festivals are mentioned), while the Haftarot are different - Ezekiel's vision of the dry bones for Pesach (Ch 37) and of the war of Gog and Magog (Ch 38) for Sukkot. Both these Haftarot foretell the end of days and future redemption.

The vision of the dry bones is very dramatic, but the reason for its selection for Shabbat Hol haMoed Pesach is unclear. The Talmud gives no explanation and nothing in the text itself (Ezek 37:1-14) suggests a connection.

Interestingly, there is a minhag (custom) among some to begin this Haftarah reading from Ezek 36:37-38, the two prior verses, which, unrelated to the vision of the dry bones, speak of the animals for the festival offerings in Jerusalem. But for the majority who start right into Chapter 37 (including both Hertz and Etz Hayim), even this connection is lacking.

There is a fascinating discussion in the Talmud (Sanhedrin 92b) about Ezekiel's vision - was he describing something he actually saw or was it a vision, to be explained metaphorically? There are rabbis in the Talmud who support both positions. What is clear is that Ezekiel, who lived in Jerusalem before the destruction of the First Temple in 586 BCE and was taken to Babylonia, was trying to give faith to the exiled community that just as God revived the dried bones here, so the Jewish people would be revived and returned to Jerusalem. If he is speaking metaphorically, predicting some future redemption for the Jewish people deep in distress, the relation to Pesach can be found in an old tradition - mentioned by Rav Hai Gaon and later the Tur - that techiyat ha'metim, the resurrection of the dead, will be on Hol haMoed Pesach.

But there are also those, like the leading 3rd century rabbi Rav, who held that Ezekiel was looking at real bones. Rav, and Rashi follows this line, says that these were the bones of the Bnei Ephraim who had miscalculated the date of the freedom from slavery and the Exodus from Egypt. They escaped from Egypt 30 years ahead of time and were killed shortly thereafter by the people of Gat. The Midrash says that their ill-conceived plan for freedom was at Pesach time.

And there is an intriguing modern interpretation, that Ezekiel was looking at the bones of the Jews who had died in the battle against the Babylonian army of Nebuchadnezzar, which conquered Jerusalem in 586 BCE and destroyed Beit HaMikdash. The large number of skeletons he sees indicates that the Jews had put up a valiant and costly fight - "the valley was full of bones...and they were very dry (37:2)." Ezekiel is paying tribute to them, the first memorial ceremony for chayalei tsahal, the precursor of the IDF, 2600 years ago. Ezekiel is saluting them and prophesizes that they will come back to life and return hope to a people who had said, "Our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost [avda tikvateinu] (37:11)." Ezekiel anticipated Naftali Hertz Imber and the Zionist Movement, and his prophecy is most appropriate for reading Chol haMoed Pesach in Israel, less than two weeks before Memorial Day for those who died in the defense of Israel, and Yom Ha'Atzma'ut, a day later.

Table Talk by Vered Hollander-Goldfarb, Conservative Yeshiva Faculty

On Shabbat Chol Hamoed our reading takes us to Pesach as it will be observed for generations to come. But on the Seventh Day of Pesach we go back into the story of the Exodus that just took place and is threatening to come to a disastrous ending.

Chol Hamoed Pesach (Shemot 33:12-34:26)

1) The main connection to the chag and to Shabbat comes fairly late in the reading. Look at Shemot (Exodus) 34:18-20. What chag is described? What name does it go by? What is the reason given for celebrating this chag? Look at vv.19-20. Why was this Mitzvah placed here?

2) Now let us look back at the topic that preceded the Mitzvot of chagim (34:11-17). What is the Torah warning us about? Why do you think that the Mitzvot about the chagim (Pesach, Shavuot and Succoth) follow this topic? (Consider what observing holidays of any sort does for a person's identity.)

3) Shemot 34:23-24 points to a Mitzvah that is unique to Pesach, Shavuot and Succoth. What is the Mitzvah? V. 24 suggests a solution for a concern of people performing this Mitzvah. What was the concern?

The Seventh Day of Pesach (Observed on Monday and Tuesday)

1) On the 7th day of Pesach, a week after leaving Egypt and heading to the desert, the Israelites stood facing the Red Sea with the Egyptians closing in from behind. The Torah stresses repeatedly in Shemot 14 'Pharaoh's horses, chariots and horsemen' in some combination. Why do you think that the Torah does not simply call them 'the Egyptians'?

2) How would you have reacted in a dire situation of this nature? How do the Israelites react (Shemot 14:10-12)? If their reaction differs from what you would have done, to what do you attribute that?

May He who blessed our ancestors and is the source of all healing bless and heal those who are ill. May the Holy One Praised Be He mercifully restore them to vigor and lift the burden of anxiety from their loved ones and friends.

On this (Sabbath, Festival, Judgment or Penitence) day we pray that they be spared further pain. May God grant them health of body and health of spirit and mind. May we speedily be privileged to greet their return to good health by welcoming them once again into our midst. Let us say: Amen.

Anyone wanting to add a name to the list should contact Diane Shalom (216-831-6555 ext. 104 or dianeshalom@bnaijeshurun.org) by Thursday afternoon at the latest for inclusion in that Shabbat's program. We will also pause during the prayer for people to recite additional names from their seats.
