Believer (Imagine Dragons)

First things first
I'm a say all the prayers in my Siddur
I'm fired up and tired I'm just waiting for Shabbat Ooh Ooh
Just waiting for Shabbat Ooh Ooh

I was learning from a young age
Learning my Hebrew in the classes
Studying Torah as a Jew
You looked at me, took to me, shook to me, feeling me
Sing from my heart and from my soul
Shul on Shabbat makes me feel whole
Learning the lessons that's the goal
Seeing the beauty that's Shabbat Oh

You made me a – you made me a believer, believer
(Shabbat)

You made me a – you made me a believer, believer

Kiddush on Friday night, Oh let us sing
My night, My prayers, my hearts full on Shabbat Oh

On the Wings of Eagles: A D'var Torah for Super Bowl Week
Dr. Joshua Kulp, Conservative Yeshiva Faculty & Rosh Yeshiva

This week, my beloved football team, the Philadelphia Eagles are preparing for their third Super Bowl, and hopefully, their first victory. The parsha is Yitro, and as Jews have been doing for thousands of years, I too cannot help but look for a sign of hope in the parsha. Maybe, finally, after 47 years of frustration (that's how old I am) my perennial losers will actually win. (If you are a Patriots fan, feel free to scan the parsha to find signs that your mighty team, possibly the greatest sports franchise in American history, will continue their oppression of the rest of the league. A bit like rooting for Pharaoh). Remarkably, the parsha contains perhaps the most famous reference to the eagle in all western literature. In Exodus 19:3 God tells Moses, "You have seen what I did to the Egyptians, and how I bore you on eagles' wings and brought you to myself." God is an eagle- what better omen could there be for a victory on Sunday!

But the verse is a bit puzzling- what is special about an eagle that God uses this particular bird as an example? The midrash (and Rashi in its wake) explains that all other birds place their young between their feet, to better protect them from other birds that hunt from above. But the eagle fears no bird, and thus can place its young on its back. The midrash draws a parallel between a person walking on the path. If he has his young son walk in front of him, the son may be attacked by robbers; if he puts him behind him, the son may be attacked by a wolf. So he places his son on his shoulder, where no harm can come to him. Just as children are safe on their parents' shoulders, so too Israel was safe on God's metaphorical wings.

But the midrash adds a puzzling note that puts a wrinkle in our story. The eagle, the midrash states, fears no one but humankind. Better the arrows shot from below hit God than hit God's children. To extend this to the metaphor, God fears no other creature or power in the world, but God does fear humankind. Why add that the eagle fears humanity? Why not state simply that the eagle fears nothing?

To say that human beings can "harm God" may be a bit of an overstatement, even with regard to the very personal, immanent God we encounter in the Bible. But it would be true to say that human beings can unleash destruction and pain in the world that God is powerless to stop. We know this from humankind's wanton destruction of the environment and most of all from humankind's incredible potential for cruelty to others.

But if we look at this metaphor another way, we may learn another message. In the midrash's image, humans ride above God's wings, in a place of safety, and humans stand below, aiming their arrows to the skies. God exists in the middle, protecting the innocent and thwarting the aims of the wicked. When God, and by extension, religion, mediates between human beings, there is the potential for violence to end. An entire nation can ride God's wings to freedom and independence. But when God is placed above other human beings, God is protected, but people are not. People's arrows, aimed at God, end up striking other humans.

And so my dear Eagles, whose first string and backup quarterback are both noteworthy, not only for their ability to throw the ball and duck sacks, but also for their devotion to Christianity, let us not pray that God is on our side during the Superbowl. After all, do we really think God cares about who wins a football game? Instead, let us pray instead that God is always in the middle, protecting the innocent and thwarting the aims of the wicked.

Table Talk by Vered Hollander-Goldfarb, Conservative Yeshiva Faculty

Yitro, Moshe's father in law, arrives with Moshe's wife and children. The people of Israel arrive at Mount Sinai. A covenant is made between God and the nation, culminating in the awe-inspiring event of the Revelation at Sinai.

1) Yitro (Jethro), Moshe's father in law, meets up with Moshe at the beginning of the Parasha. Yitro is described not only by his family relation to Moshe, but also as 'the priest (Kohen) of Midyan' (18:1). Why do you think that the Torah included that?

2) Chapter 19 tells the story of the revelation at Sinai. The Torah tells us that the people arrived at Sinai on the third new moon 'on this day' (19:1). Rashi brings the following Midrash: It should have said "on that day." What is the meaning of "on this day"? That the words of the Torah shall be new to you, as if they were given just today. What difficulty did Rashi find in the language that the Torah chose? What idea did he develop from this choice? How might we apply it in our lives?

3) Mount Sinai is a stop in the desert, not the final destination of the people. Why do you think that God did not give the Torah inside the Land of Israel?

4) The people are told not to come near the mountain during the revelation (19:11-13). What effect do you think that this distancing might have had on the people's experience of the event?

5) The Torah describes the experience of the people as 'seeing the sounds and the lights and the sound of the Shofar, and the mountain smoking' (20:14). Why do you think that a verb for sight was used to describe an experience of sound?

We welcome your children in the Main Sanctuary!

May He who blessed our ancestors and is the source of all healing bless and heal those who are ill. May the Holy One Praised Be He mercifully restore them to vigor and lift the burden of anxiety from their loved ones and friends.

On this (Sabbath, Festival, Judgment or Penitence) day we pray that they be spared further pain. May God grant them health of body and health of spirit and mind. May we speedily be privileged to greet their return to good health by welcoming them once again into our midst. Let us say: Amen.

Anyone wanting to add a name to the list should contact Diane Shalom (216-831-6555 ext. 104 or dianeshalom@bnaijeshurun.org) by Thursday afternoon at the latest for inclusion in that Shabbat's program. We will also pause during the prayer for people to recite additional names from their seats.

L'hitraot* to Henderson Grant

After 47 years of dedicated service to B'nai Jeshurun, Henderson Grant has retired as our Maintenance Supervisor. He has been a friend and integral part of this synagogue and we want to honor him in an appropriate manner. Grant and his wife, Rosa, have asked that there be no events to honor him, and while we would like to have a retirement event, we will certainly comply with their request.

We do want to make sure that Grant and his family are able to enjoy his retirement and honor him in a way that he would appreciate. To do this, the synagogue will accept donations marked "Henderson Grant Retirement" for two purposes:

- A gift of appreciation for Grant from the congregation.
- A donation to Grant's Church in his honor. Grant is a Deacon at True Gospel Missionary Baptist Church and this donation will be appreciated by the family.

We hope you will consider making a donation so that together we can make a significant gift of appreciation. Thank you for supporting Grant during his long tenure at B'nai Jeshurun. Your gift will help us express our thanks for all Grant has done for our congregation.
