Look at Me! (to the tune of Look at Me I'm Sandra Dee - Grease)

Look at me I'm Queen Vashti
Invited to the King's party
No way, I said
though I may lose my head
Who cares, I'm Queen Vashti
Watch it, King! I won't come play!
I was not brought up that way
You may be boss, but my pride will be lost
So instead I'll stay away.

I don't drink, dear King
and here's the thing
I'm too shy to come and be seen
Keep your party guests
to yourself; they're pests
I hope you don't think I sound mean.

As for you, your love is true, But I know what you want to do
You want to stare at my beauty so rare
No way! I'm Queen Vashti

King, King, let me be
You're too drunk to punish me
Just keep your cool
Or you'll look like a fool
Hey, I rule! I'm Queen Vashti
Goodbye to Queen Vashti!

What is Humanity That You Should Count Them?

By Rabbi Ilan Goldhaber-Gordon, Conservative Yeshiva Kollel Alumna and Rabbi Educator at Congregation Beth Jacob, Redwood City, California

The Shabbat Shekalim reading (Ex. 30-11-16) tells Moses how to take a census, by counting half-shekel coins. But what was the spirit of a census in the Torah? Were the Israelites counted the way my grandmother z"l loved to count her children's birthdays: "In April I have one - Alan; in May I have two, your mother and Maynard; in June . . ." Or was it more like the way I count my forks before setting the table?

Twice the census came up with the same number: 603,550 (Exodus 38:26 and Numbers 1:46). To explain this seeming coincidence Ha'amek Davar (19th C, Lithuania) suggested that this number was the required retinue for the King of Kings. Before God and Israel could begin their travels, they counted the men up to 603,550. "From then on, even if many more boys came of age they were not counted -- unless someone died or left the camp for another reason, then they would fill the retinue with others." Like my forks - I don't care how many I have altogether, so long as I have enough for each person.

Rashi had a different take (Num 1:1). He claimed the two counts were done close together in time and the number had not changed. God counted the Israelites in Exodus, like a shepherd who loves his sheep (Ex. 30:13, 16). As for the census in Numbers, "God counts them frequently [kol sha'ah] out of affection for them."

Though Rashi and the author of HaEmek Davar lived eight centuries apart, their opinions are printed on the same page, and together they reflect a chasidic saying attributed to Rabbi Simcha Bunim of Peshischa: "A person should have two notes in his/her pockets. On one should be written: 'The world was created for me (Sanhedrin 4:5).' On the other: 'I am but dirt and ashes (Genesis 18:27).'"

In the age of science, we need those notes in our pockets more than ever. I know more secrets of creation than even Moses himself could have known. I can search the sequence of the entire human genome with my computer. A few keystrokes, and Google Maps can direct me to any point in the world, much of which Moses never knew existed.

When we feel this powerful, it is easy to forget that a few milligrams of cholesterol in the wrong location (God forbid!) and I would be gone. Ha'amek Davar's commentary reminds us: my disappearance would matter little to God, so long as another person could fill out the numbers. And with 7 billion people in the world, filling out the numbers should be no problem.

How could my life possibly matter to the Rock of the Universe? Our galaxy alone contains 100 thousand million stars, and the universe contains millions upon millions of galaxies. What matters one planet or one little star, let alone one life on that planet?

But Rashi reminds us that the Holy One counted the people one at a time, treasuring each and every one. Who am I to claim a limit on how high the Infinite One can count?

The Psalmist asks (8:5): "What is humanity, that You should remember them?" But the very next verse affirms: "Yet You have made them but little lower than the angels, and have crowned them with glory and honor." Two verses, two notes - two so different, yet complementary, views.

Table Talk

By Vered Hollander-Goldfarb, Conservative Yeshiva Faculty

We have reached the point of action. After receiving lengthy instructions for building the Mishkan (Tabernacle), it is finally happening. What will it look like when put into practice?

Note that this is Shabbat Shkalim, the first of several Shabatot on which we read a special Maftir (last section of Torah reading) due to a seasonal event. The Maftir is found in last week's reading and the first question of last week's Table Talk relates to it.

1) This Parasha of building the Mishkan opens with some of the restrictions on Shabbat (35:1-3). Why do you think this topic was placed here, at the opening of the description of building the Mishkan?

2) There were 2 types of donations for the Mishkan: People donated materials, but there was another form of donation as well (35:9, 25-26). What was that donation? What are the positive sides of each of these types of donations?

3) The people in charge of actually creating everything that Moshe had been commanded to make are Betzalel and Aholiav. What qualified Betzalel? Is this the way you would define wisdom? Why do you think that they, not Moshe who received the details, build the Mishkan? (36:1-2)

4) The dream of any fundraiser comes true when the people are told to bring their donations for the Mishkan. What do the artisans ask Moshe to tell the people (36:4-5)? What do we learn about the people of Israel and about their relationship to the Mishkan?

5) The instructions for the Mishkan (found in Parashat Terumah) began with the ark. What is the first part of the Mishkan to be created (36:8-38)? Why do you think that they build this first, rather than follow the order of the instructions?

May He who blessed our ancestors and is the source of all healing bless and heal those who are ill. May the Holy One Praised Be He mercifully restore them to vigor and lift the burden of anxiety from their loved ones and friends.

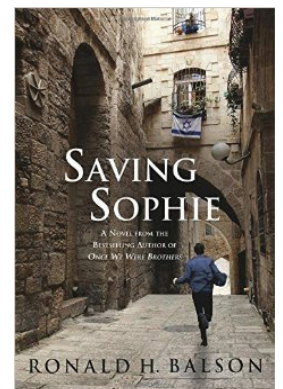

On this (Sabbath, Festival, Judgment or Penitence) day we pray that they be spared further pain. May God grant them health of body and health of spirit and mind. May we speedily be privileged to greet their return to good health by welcoming them once again into our midst. Let us say: Amen.

Anyone wanting to add a name to the list should contact Diane Shalom (216-831-6555 ext. 104 or dianeshalom@bnaijeshurun.org) by Thursday afternoon at the latest for inclusion in that Shabbat's program. We will also pause during the prayer for people to recite additional names from their seats.
